Out of the Shadow: a Film by Susan Smiley

Filmed over five years, Out of the Shadow chronicles the triumphs and struggles of the daily life of the filmmaker’s mother, Millie, who has schizophrenia. This film, according to the New York Times, “...is an object lesson in resilience and gratitude. Out of the Shadow is a valentine to her (mother), and a heartening one.”

Please join us for this important movie! It will be available for free at the Community Mental Health Board Room on Wednesday, September 17, 2008 from 3 pm to 5 pm. A discussion period at 4:15 pm follows the film. There is limited space, so please call Leslie Hall at Customer Services to register at: 517-546-4126.
It has been known for years that persons with serious mental illness have a life expectancy lower than the general population. Recent research has revealed that the rates of serious medical issues and early death have risen dramatically. These increases have largely been linked to treatable medical conditions, modifiable risk factors, and limited access to primary medical care.

The research has demonstrated that the effects of these serious medical conditions can be minimized or even avoided by regular medical monitoring and intervention. To help improve the health and life expectancy of our consumers, Community Mental Health Service of Livingston County announces an Integrated Health Initiative. This program has several goals, two of which are to:

1) Increase the number of CMH consumers with ongoing active treatment relationships with a primary care physician or primary care clinic to improve their overall health.

2) Improve the agencies relationships with area primary care physicians and clinics to increase collaborative treatment.

The following facts are areas that CMH’s new health initiative will be trying to improve:

- Increasing peoples use of primary care medical services.
- Educating and supporting people with mental illness about physical illness and disease.
- Helping people understand how to make better health choices.
- Ensuring people understand the benefits and risks of prescription medication.

More information on the Integrated Health Initiative will be available soon. However feel free to contact Lorne McKenzie in the CMH Health and Medication Clinic with any questions or suggestions, or if you would be willing to participate in an upcoming focus group. Lorne may be reached at 517-546-4126.

How to Dispose of Unused Drugs

Managing unused medications is a safety as well as an environmental concern. It is no longer recommended to flush unwanted medications down the drain or toilet. Antibiotics and other medications in the septic system can destroy beneficial bacteria for these systems to work. Wastewater treatment plants are not designed to remove or process the compounds in medications that end up in our surface and ground water.

What should you do with unwanted medications?

1. Check with your pharmacy to see if they have a drug take back program.
2. Find out if there is a special collection for unused and expired drugs in your area.
3. Dispose of unwanted medicines in the trash if a collection program is not available.

*Prior to disposal be sure to keep in original container and scratch out or use permanent marker to wipe out personal information.

A. For Solid Medications (Pills/Capsules): add a small amount of water to at least partially dissolve them. Seal the container with duct or other thick tape.

B. For Liquid Medications: add enough table salt, flour, charcoal, or non-toxic powdered spice to make an overpowering, unsightly mixture that discourages anyone from eating it. Seal the container with duct or other thick tape.

C. For Blister Packs: wrap the blister package containing pills in multiple layers of duct or other thick tape.

Then, double bag the contained drugs in a plastic bag or put in another container with the lid taped closed and put in the trash. Chemotherapy drugs may require special handling. Discuss with your healthcare provider when disposing of these medications.

5 Rules for Buying Prescription Drugs Online

Thinking of trying to buy your prescriptions drugs online? Wondering how to minimize the risks, and avoid dangers?

The internet offers a wealth of opportunities and some problems for people who want to buy prescription drugs. You want to avoid getting face prescriptions and outdated or substandard medications.

Here is some advice from the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) on how to shop safely.

#1. First, get your prescription by seeing a real, live doctor. - DON'T buy online from sites that offer to prescribe a medicine for the first time without a physical exam by your doctor or that sell a prescription medicine without a prescription. This could lead to both and inappropriate diagnosis and inappropriate medication.

#2. Use a legitimate online pharmacy. - How can you tell if a website is legitimate? Well, these sites always require a prescription from your doctor or a legitimate healthcare provider. They also verify the prescription before dispensing the medication. A written verification policy is usually posted on the site.

#3. Use a pharmacy that provides access to a licensed pharmacist. - This helps assure the website is legitimate and provides a way for you to get answers to questions you may have about your prescription.

#4. Check to see if the online pharmacy is licensed. - Look for sites that display the MABP VIPPS (trademark) seal. These sites meet all applicable state and federal requirements. The letters stand for National Association of Boards of Pharmacy Verified Internet Pharmacy Practice Site. Pharmacy websites are licensed by individual states, so you can also check with either your state board of pharmacy or the National Association of Boards of pharmacy.

#5. Safeguard you privacy and security. - Don’t provide any personally identifiable information (social security number, credit card, and health history) unless you are confident that the site will protect them. Make sure the site does not share your information with others without your permission.

Safe Picnics...Don’t let bad bugs spoil your fun!
Reprinted from: BE Healthy, July 2008

Keeping food safe at a picnic comes down to these three rules:

1) Keep it Hot or keep it Cold!  2) Keep it Clean!  3) Pack ONLY what you’ll eat!

Food Temperature
As at home, pathogens that cause food-borne illness grow fastest on foods that are between 40 and 140 degrees. The less time your food stays between those temperatures, the less time pathogens have to grow.

Once the feasting has begun, return food to the cooler promptly. If a dish is left out for more than an hour when it’s hotter than 85 degrees or if the ice in the cooler holding it has melted, pitch it.

Since a cooler gets warmer faster with continual opening and closing, take two: one for food, one for drinks. That way, picnickers can help themselves to beverages without endangering the food.

Cleanliness
To avoid cross contamination, wash your hands with soap and water and water after working with raw meat or going to the bathroom. Pack a small bottle of dish soap to make up for soap less bathrooms. (Hand sanitizers are OK if hands are not visibly soiled and if they contain an alcohol concentration of more then 60 percent).

Don’t use a utensil or plate that has handled uncooked items for ready-to-eat ones.

Limit Leftovers
Pack fewer spoilable foods and more stable foods such as crackers, baked chips, nuts, peanut butter sandwiches and unpeeled fresh apples, oranges and bananas.

Try this Moroccan Sweet-Potato Salad for a twist on a picnic staple. It’s rich in vitamin A and heart-healthy olive oil. Happy summer ☺
